MRS. WILLIAM HAMILTON BAYLY President.

Prophecies of a new biulding it which to house the many activities and interests of the Young Women's were made by speakers at a "birthday party" held by association members and their friends at St. Paul's Lutheran Church last evening. The occasion was the tenth anniversary of Christian Association of Washington the founding of the organization in this

Several brief addresses were madtelling of the association and its work. This was followed by an impressive pageant, in which the many interests vere described. The climax of the pageant came when Mrs. Charles W. Richardson, second vice president of the Young Women's Christian Association, held up a drawing of "the building to be" and explained that $105,000 of the cost of the site had been paid, leaving but $5,000 to be procured before it would be entirely free from debt.

"Our baby of ten years ago is no longer in swaddling clothes," said Mrs. Julia T. Bodfish, first president of the Y. W. C. A., who was one of the speakers. "She has now reached the age of ten years, and is now asking for great things. She has a right to expect great things, too. I predict that in half a lecade she will have changed—not her name, like so many maidens do—but ner address, to the southeast corner of 3th and I streets." The location to which Mrs. Bodfish referred is the site thosen for the future building.

Growth of the Association.

Dr. Ada R. Thomas spoke of the rapid rowth of the association, saying its nembership has increased so rapidly hat headquarters had been changed in rder to accommodate the membership. low, she said, the present rooms at 4th and G streets are outgrown and ore room is needed.

"This growing child presents the same problem that other growing children lo," said Dr. Thomas. "She needs many 10," said Dr. Thomas. "Sne needs many things for which money is necessary. Yet she has an excellent record, being $5 per cent self-supporting. Last year, when many other organizations had trouble in raising finances, we 'swung' he largest budget we ever had—$45,-000—and closed the year free from debt."

The speakers complimented Miss Florence M. Brown, general secretary of the association, upon her work.

"No matter to what heights we climb, we find out that Miss Brown is always just a little ahead of us," said Dr. Thomas. "I know she never will be satisfied until she has a flag flying from a flagpole over the new building."

Mrs. Richardson, in referring to Miss Brown, said: Brown, said:

One of the prettiest parts of the pageant probably, and one which won a large volume of applause, was the description of work being done by a branch at Gallaudet College, given in signs by students from that institution and interpreted by one of the other participants. Following the explanation of the work done, the girls gave a hymn in signs.

Another feature which attracted unusual attention was the clubs composed of young girls working in department stores. They ended by presenting a sign urging "Do your shopping early."

Not Advisable to Erect Bathing Beach There, Secretary of War Says.

Relatives and friends invited. by the Senate last February, the Secof the tidal basin a great bathing beach for the citizens of Washington, asked for information regarding the causes of the pollution of the water in the basin; by what authority private parties are permitted to maintain a boat and bathhouse on the basin and what rent is paid by the proprietors of the bathhouses. Senator Norris had succeeded in hav-Senator Norris had succeeded in having an item included in the District appropriation bill at the last session of Congress looking to the establishment of a bathing beach at the basin, but at the last minute it was omitted because of a report that the waters of the basin were not fit to bathe in.

Pollution of the Basin.

In his report to the Senate the Secetary of War stated that extended inquiries into the objection to the use f the basin on account of its pollution have about convinced the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds that, although it would impose a de cided hardship at this time to do away cided hardship at this time to do away with the temporary use of the basin for swimming purposes, nothing should be planned for permanent bathing establishments there. The causes of contamination of the water are several. They are given as follows: Tidal action, the raw river water at Great Falls is too polluted for drinking purposes, and after passing Great Falls the river is continually charged with more or less sewage; the water in the basin ess sewage; the water in the basin tself is polluted by a direct discharge of sewage.

The report states that the extent of the pollution in the tidal basin is not great, but in the opinion of the officer in charge the cost of freeing the water of this pollution would be too great.

East Potomac Park Plans. In closing, the report states:

"Studies are now in course of prepration in the office of public buildings and grounds, with the assistance and upervision of the national fine arts ommission, for the improvement of the large area of East Potomac Park as a large public recreation ground. These studies include extensive provisions for outdoor swimming pools and natatoriums of the most up-to-date kind. It is believed that these plans, if adopted is believed that these plans, if adopted by Congress, will remedy the deplorable lack of bathing facilities in the District of Columbia. Washington in the summer time has one of the most trying climates in the United States, and conditions for swimming and bathing are inadequate. Every effort is being made, with full recognition of these facts, to present to Congress at an early date a satisfactory solution of the problem which will relieve the present conditions."
